

CPCCOHS1001A - WORK SAFELY IN THE CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY (CIC) – Whitecard (Previously recognised as the Greencard)

Brief outline of training:

Construction Induction training provides persons entering the construction industry with a basic knowledge of requirements under OHS laws, including the consultation and communication process, common hazards and risks that are associated with working on construction sites, emergency procedures, incident reporting and how these risks should be controlled.

When looking for a job, or if your working on a building or construction site in New South Wales, WorkCover - the State Occupational Health and Safety body, requires that you have completed an accredited safety training course, and that you hold a current Occupational Health and Safety Construction Induction Certificate (White Card or previously known as Green Card)

Who should attend this course:

School leavers and / or students attending School placement on worksites
Apprentices
Self-employed persons
Trade persons
Supervisors and managers
Any person who works in, or is associated with the construction industry

Pre-/Co-requisites:

If you have previously completed general induction training, i.e. from 29th March 2004 onwards, you will not need to complete further training at this stage.

If you are 14 years or over or you want to re-enter the construction industry after an absence of 2 years, you are legally bound to gain the NSW Construction Induction card to work on a construction site in NSW.

Assessment:

Assessment will consist of a written 20 questions activity with multiple answer question format. Upon successful completion of the ohs construction induction training certificate course, participants receive a statement of attainment as part of Certificate I in Construction. Successful participants will be issued with a WorkCover Statement of Training (SOT) on the day of training.
